A West Ashley man is dead...and authorities suspect murder.

A report from the Charleston County Sheriff's Office says around nine last night a resident in the Magnolia and Forbes Avenue area called police to report a car speeding by then crashing through a fence and into a neighbor's home.

Authorities say they arrived to find the driver slumped over with blood on his left side. They also noticed two cracks in the windshield...the rear window busted out...and a 22-caliber bullet behind the victim's car.

The victim is 37-year-old Hurley Funderburk the third of Trailmore Drive in West Ashley.

Police say no arrests so far.
