1. A Midcity native who was President Bill Clinton’s official White House photographer has a new job. Scott Queen will be in charge of the State Board of Industrial Review’s photography section. Governor John Sorenson today announced the appointment. Queen is 56.

2. Midcity University’s School of Medicine is stepping up its cancer research. This with the help of the Burton P. Maxwell Foundation which is awarding a three-point-two-five million dollar research grant to the school.

3. Tragedy in Midcity today. A six-year-old boy was killed when he fell under the front wheels of a school bus. Witnesses say the boy started running along a curb as the bus approached...slipped...and lost his balance. Marshall James Marks was the son of Mister and Misses James Marks of Mountain View Drive.

4. Three men...suspected in 12 Midwest murders...were arrested today here in Midcity. The three were arrested at 7-15 this morning in an apartment on 49th Street. They have been identified as 44-year-old Peter King...29-year-old Martin Krumm...and 37-year-old Gregory Loo. They will be arraigned this afternoon.

5. A close call for Midcity University’s basketball team...and it happened not on the hard court...but at the airport. The team was aboard a United Airlines jet that had to make an emergency return to Midcity Municipal Airport after one of its three engines shut down. One-hundred-nine passengers were on the plane that had just taken off when a fire warning light came on. The pilot shut down the one engine and safety returned to Midcity’s airport. Investigators say there was no fire...just a malfunction in the light’s electrical system.
